Reference number: Å. 10.1056 / Nejm199 511 023 331 805. Methods: We used the method of umbrella Review of the Institute Joanna Briggs. Screening, identification and management of depression in the elderly who lend primary assistance. Conclusions: We confirm a widely used definition of CGA. In just 6 cases on 33 (18.2%) the alteration of the view was new to the doctor, while for the alteration of hearing and the depression this information was new respectively in 43 cases on 58 (74. 1%) and in 26 cases out of 34 (76.5%). The difference in the coverage between the influenza and pneumococcal vaccination in our population reflects the lower acceptance of the pneumococcal vaccine. Health Bull (EDINB) 1982; 40: 125Å »132. 2000; 162: 1289Å € 1294. Based on our data we are unable to explain why a discrepancy has been found between higher percentages of actions undertaken after the detection of functional impairment or lack of preventive measures (eg vaccination) compared to the measurement of pathological values of plasma lipids, arterial pressure or blood sugar. In 55% of patients the CGA declared to provide new information on their state of health, especially in the area of sensory dysfunction (vision, hearing), of cognitive damage and the risk of osteoporosis. In the field of study, doctors were aware of not losing this treatable condition and considered further efforts necessary in about 60% of positive cases.
